

BRISTOW'S SPEECH.

The following is the speech of Benjamin H. Bristow, at Cincinnati, on June 24th, at a meeting held at Exposition Hall, to ratify the nominations of Hayes and Wheeler, for President and Vice President of the United States. Mr. Bristow was the first speaker, and delivered the annexed beautiful address:

The assembling of this vast audience to ratify the work of the National Republican Convention held in this hall, last week, shows that the patriotic people who responded so nobly to their country's call in the hour of danger and dissolution, are not yet ready to turn that country over to the supreme control of mere professional politicians and peddlers of patronage.

It is a hopeful sign of the times to see, in this city of solid wealth and substantial industries, so many of her best citizens taking active interest in the struggle for party supremacy. Since the imposition of internal taxes, made necessary by the late war, Cincinnati has paid into the National Treasury the aggregate sum of one million dollars [applause], to say nothing of the amount paid indirectly through another branch of the revenue. Your great city has paid to the Government in this fiscal year one-tenth of the entire internal revenue collected from forty millions of people. Why, then, should not the people of this city feel a deep interest in all that concerns the administration of the Government, the collection and disbursement of revenue for its support? You have a right to insist upon the faithful collection in any part of the country of the taxes imposed by law [applause], and it is equally your right and duty to demand that every dollar so collected shall be applied to the legitimate purposes of Government, and to no other. [Cheers.] To this end it behoves every citizen to see to it that none but competent and faithful men are elected to office. [Applause.] When the people become indifferent to the selection of their public servants, and suffer our popular elections to pass into the control of mere place-seekers and professional politicians, then indeed will have come a danger to our common country more insidious than treason, and more certain than armed rebellion to bring decay and ultimate destruction.

WORK OF THE CONVENTION.

This great outpouring of the people here to-night testifies to the fact that the National Republican Convention did its work wisely and well. You are here for the purpose of ratifying that work, and the enthusiasm of the hour shows how heartily your approval is given. The platform of principles is one upon which every patriotic citizen who loves freedom and justice may securely stand. It declares for equal and exact justice to all men, liberty and equality in the exercise of all civil, political and public rights, to be enforced, if need be, by all the power conferred upon the Government by the Constitution. In this declaration is embodied the highest aim of government, and without its practical operation no government is really free or worthy the support of free people. Conceding perfect liberty and exact equality to those who sought, by violence, to overthrow the Government, it demands the same security and right for the newly enfranchised race which "followed the flag and kept step to the music of the Union." This is but another form of expression for the idea that this Government is a Nation of one people, and not a mere league of many States.

RESUMPTION.

The platform commits the party fully and squarely to the resumption of specie payment [applause], which is demanded alike by the best interests of the people and the solemn pledges of the Government.

There must be no step backward, but continuous and steady progress toward resumption and return to the money of the Constitution. Every expedient for the revival of our prospective industries which falls short of absolute resumption and complete fulfillment of all our national obligations, will prove inadequate and deceptive. The necessities of the country demand the restoration of confidence in business and commercial transactions, and this will come only from a stable currency and readiness to discharge all national liabilities according to the letter and spirit of the undertaking.

REFORM.

The Convention has given us a simple and easy method of reforming our civil service, which is neither more nor less than the practical application in public affairs of the rule which works so well in business, and leave others to do likewise. Members of Congress, whom the Constitution charges with legislative duties, should not dictate appointments to office as rewards for personal political service, but should leave the Executive free to exercise his constitutional functions in the selection of officers with reference to honesty, fidelity and capacity, under the sanction of his oath to take care that the laws are faithfully executed. When this distinction between legislative and executive functions comes to be fully recognized and observed, it will be easy enough for the Executive to reform and elevate our civil service. Without this it is impossible.

The Convention has struck a blow at the very root of all evil, and has indicated the true remedy for the dangerous tendencies of a practice which comes down to us from the Democratic party.

The platform pledges the party to speedy, thorough and unsparing prosecution and punishment of all public officers who betray official trust. [Great applause.]

The Convention did not stop to consider, as some would have us do, whether such prosecutions and punishments would be hurtful to the party. It has given public notice that plunderers of the public revenue and corrupt officials, whether Democrats or Republicans, must meet, as they deserve, the rigors of our criminal statutes. The necessity for purity in the public service, and the duty that rests upon us to preserve and perpetuate our form of government, demand strict observance and fulfillment of this pledge.

NON-SECTARIAN GOVERNMENT AND EDUCATION.

Recognizing fully the value of popular education, [applause] and the absolute importance of complete separation of Church and State, [applause] the Convention has declared in favor of a Constitutional amendment forever securing public funds or property for the support of public schools against sectarian control or influence.

This is no substantial reason why every man who has at any time acted with the Republican party may not stand upon the Cincinnati platform and support the nominees. Whatever causes of difference may have existed heretofore are brushed away by the wise and timely action of the late Convention. Casting aside forever all the petty disaffections that have arisen within the party, let us once more present to the country an unbroken front, and with firm purpose and high resolve move forward to another victory, determined to perpetuate for ourselves and our posterity all that has been secured in the past and to advance still further the principles upon which the party is founded.

EASTERN DISPATCHES.

Disappointed and Angry.

NEW YORK, July 15.

A Washington special says that the President one day last week, gave audience to an Ohio private gentleman, in no way connected with public life, and conversed with him upon the situation. Among other things he criticized Hayes' letter. He thought it reflected upon the administration. He further said that he hoped the time would come when the American people would be permitted to elect a President for as long a time as they chose. His entire manner indicated complete dissatisfaction with the political situation and much anger.

Said to be KILLED.

CHICAGO, July 15.

A dispatch from Fort Lincoln gives further news of the Little Horn fight in which it said that Sitting Bull was killed and a white man, named Milburn, his chief adviser.

Four companies of infantry, consisting of 12 officers and 140 men, arrived at Fort Lincoln, and intend starting for Terry's command on Sunday. The wounded are recovering. It is thought the Indians obtained $20,000 from the soldiers, they having just been paid off.

In Council—Exposed.

NEW YORK, July 15.

A special from Saratoga, New York, says, Gov. Tilden and Gov. Hendricks, and a number of friends had a long conference yesterday and canvassed the entire situation. They concluded that in the coming campaign reform was to be the leading cry of the Democrats. Tilden is preparing his letter of acceptance. He leaves for Albany to-day. Hendricks left for Indianapolis last night.

A special from Washington contradicts a special dispatch in yesterday's Sun, stating that the President had ordered the removal of number of Treasury Officials, and says the President had no conversation with Morrill on the subject, and Morrill does not intend to make other removals or appointments except for could have been placed on the ticket. No language I can use is too strong to express my confidence in that patriotism, purity and trustworthiness of the men. But success cannot be achieved without united, persistent and well directed effort. Our political opponents are active and watchful and ever ready to seize from us control of the Executive Department of the Government, of which they have been so long deprived. While denying that their party is a sectional one, it is their boast that they will have united one entire section of the country in support of the candidates whom they will present. The highest considerations of patriotism, and the greatest good of the whole people, require that political and party contests shall no longer be marked by sectional lines and boundaries.

The position of the Republican party to-day presents an opportunity for the complete obliteration of such lines. It appeals to no prejudice and invokes no sectional hate. It plants its banners high on the ramparts of freedom, and invite the people of every section and condition to full and equal enjoyment of all civil and political rights. The old Henry Clay Whigs and Douglass Democrats of the South, inspired by that love of the Union which animated the bosoms of their great leaders, should stand shoulder to shoulder with us in this Centennial year. They are no less interested than ourselves in preserving the Union and perpetuating the blessings of freedom. Let them bury the hurtful prejudices engendered by civil war, and once more come to the front with their old allies and political friends, who will gladly welcome them. The platform and candidates of the Republican party are worthy the support of every man of the South who is willing to forget the bitterness of the past, or who has within his bosom a spark of patriotic hope for the future of our common country, and an indissoluble Union.

There is no substantial reason why every man who has at any time acted with the Republican party may not stand upon the Cincinnati platform and support the nominees. Whatever causes of difference may have existed heretofore are brushed away by the wise and timely action of the late Convention. Casting aside forever all the petty disaffections that have arisen within the party, let us once more present to the country an unbroken front, and with firm purpose and high resolve move forward to another victory, determined to perpetuate for ourselves and our posterity all that has been secured in the past and to advance still further the principles upon which the party is founded.

In word, the standard which the party has carried successfully through four successive National contests has not been lowered, but advanced still higher. The Convention which assembled here last week has shown to the world that it represented a party of progress, ready, willing and able to move forward in the science of government, and to learn lessons of wisdom in the school of experience.

THE CANDIDATES.

Upon this platform it has placed men who bear honored names in our country, the excellence and purity of whose public services and lives furnish a sufficient guarantee that the principles announced will be carried out in letter and spirit. It has selected for its standard bearers Governor Hayes, of your own State, [cheers,] and William A. Wheeler, of New York. Governor Hayes is well known to you. Under his leadership you have got into the habit of achieving victory. Three times have you chosen him to occupy the chair of Chief Executive of the great State of Ohio. Not only has he served his State with honor to both the State and himself, but he has nobly and gallantly served his country at a time when his services were of the highest value. Modest in bearing toward his fellow-men, one whose purity of public and private character cannot be gainsayed, intelligent, patriotic, and sound in judgment, the occupant of the chair of Chief Magistrate of the Nation. The people appreciate, and the times demand just such men for public servants, and it can not be doubted that on an occasion of such grand and imperious necessity as the election of a President in this Centennial year of our National existence, both platforms and candidates will be carefully weighed. Happily for us the Cincinnati Convention has so acted as to challenge the closest and most careful scrutiny of both. The nomination of Governor Hayes was an act of wisdom, and, if elected, as I do not doubt he will be, he will give the country a wise, patriotic and pure administration.

Our nominee for the Vice Presidency has also served his country faithfully and well. As a member of the popular branch of Congress, he has challenged the admiration and won the esteem of all who know him. His character is a tower of strength. He is a man of practical knowledge of public affairs, of unquestioned ability, and in full sympathy with the highest and best principles of the Republican party.

The principles of the great Republican party have the same living force they have always had, and the prosperity and future glory of the Republic require that our highest officers shall be true to them.

SAN FRANCISCO NEWS.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 15.

The News Letter comes out this morning with a blast directed at Flood & O'Brien, industriously writes up James R. Keene, lauding his foresight in predicting the present state of affairs, and styles him "the biggest man on the Stock Board."

The strength shown by the leading stocks this morning, has put the streets in much better humor, and the panic, anticipated to-day, seems likely to blow over.

Another case of small-pox in the City Prison this morning caused much excitement among the prisoners.

Collector Sedgwick last night seized the "Cabana" factory for selling unstamped cigars. This is a Chinese institution and one of the largest in the city, employing seventy-five men.

During yesterday the same officer seized the cigar factory in the Globe Hotel for the same offense, capturing a large quantity of cigars and tobacco. While searching the building for more tobacco, he came upon an illicit match factory and seized the stock and materials. It has been ascertained that his place was the depot where most of the unstamped matches sold around town are made. It is also stated that many persons who bought unstamped matches are known and will be arrested and prosecuted.

The Democrats had a rumpus at a meeting to organize an Eleventh Ward Club. The row was between the kid glove and anti-coolie factions. After a couple of hours wrangling and hot debate, the latter captured the organization and put in all the officers.

A case of small pox was found among the inmates of the City Prison to-day. The patient was quickly removed and the place fumigated.

The collection in this city for the Centennial celebration amounted to $28,000, and the expenditures to $18,000. The balance will be divided among the Orphan Asylums.

MINING NOTES.

The Pictou assessment of 25c has been rescinded, and one 10c per share levied, amounting to $3,000, delinquent August 15th.

The Overman Mining Company have re-elected the old officers. The meeting to increase the capital will take place on the 25th.

In reply to correspondent, we may state that the Mexican mine is divided into 100,000 shares, and not 108,000 shares, as some authorities have it.

The new exhaust fan, recently introduced at some of the Washoe mines for cooling the air in the lower levels, works successfully. The temperature in one case has been reduced from 112 to 92 degrees.

The Belcher mine is credited with turning out 400 tons of ore per day and the Ophir mine with 300 tons per day.

The Belmont Mining Company have re-elected the old officers.

JOURNAL OFFICE.

The office of this paper is now in the new two-story brick Journal building on Second, between Virginia and Sierra Streets.

SWITCH BOARD.—The Western Union Telegraph Office in this place has a "switch board" placed in it. It is nickel plated and is capable of a limitless number of combinations. It is very handy, for by the placing of a plug in one of the numerous holes any lines can be connected. A perfect net-work of wires run to it. There are but two of these on the lines between Sacramento and Salt Lake—at Reno and Virginia. Brown is very proud of his new acquisition.

NEW DISCOVERY.—On McClellan's ranch, some 12 miles the other side of Pyramid, some prospectors have found another ledge of paying rock. Assays have been made which show that gold in paying quantities exist in it. As yet nothing particular has been done further than a little prospecting.

SPORT.—This afternoon at 3 o'clock that irrepressible Watty will give his friends some fun out at the English Mills. He has secured two wild cats and a dog and will pit them against each other, for the amusement of spectators. In addition to this there will be shooting and other sports. Bring your own flask.

THE POOR HOUSE.—is assuming respectable proportions rapidly. Already the two sides are up the roof shingled and a large portion of the indoor work done. It is nicely located and will prove of much value to the county and comfort to the indigent sick.

There are messages in the Western Union Telegraph Office for Ben Wood, E. B. Harlan, and Anna Bell Story.

The Flying Gallery will return to Reno during the State Fair. Wait and get good pictures cheap.
